Secondary Jurisdiction Licensed Practical Nurses (SJLPN)

Are you licensed as an LPN in another Canadian jurisdiction and want to work in Saskatchewan on a short-term, occasional, or temporary basis? If so, you might be a candidate for Secondary Jurisdiction LPN (SJLPN) licensure in Saskatchewan.

Who Should Apply?

To be considered for SJLPN licensure, you must be licensed in good standing with your primary jurisdiction of LPN licensure and any other jurisdiction where you are licensed currently. You will be considered for SJLPN licensure if you answer "yes" to any one of the following statements below:

- I am a travel nurse and have accepted or plan to accept a temporary employment contract in Saskatchewan.
- I provide virtual nursing care to clients in Saskatchewan, but I do not live in Saskatchewan.
- My primary place of LPN employment is not in Saskatchewan.
- I am enrolled or plan to enroll in a Saskatchewan education program, and the program requires me to have LPN licensure in Saskatchewan.

If you can answer "yes" to one of the above, you can proceed to the application. To apply, you must:

- Be licensed in good standing as an LPN in another Canadian jurisdiction(s).
- "Create an account" on the member portal on the CLPNS webpage.
- Upload two pieces of identification, one of which must contain a photo.
- Upload a current criminal record check from your local police department or RCMP detachment.
- Contact the jurisdiction(s) in which you are currently licensed and request that they issue a Verification of Registration (VOR) to the CLPNS.
- Pay a $200 application fee.

*you may be asked to provide an employer verification from your primary employer located outside of Saskatchewan

Once an SJLPN application is approved, you must pay the $200 licensure fee to practice as an LPN in Saskatchewan.

Obligations after Becoming an SJLPN:

- Declare any changes to your primary employment outside of Saskatchewan as they occur and at the time of annual renewal to the CLPNS.
- Inform the CLPNS if you are under investigation or have a complaint against your practice in your primary jurisdiction.
- Inform the CLPNS if you were charged with a criminal offence.
- Maintain and complete the continuing competence requirements required by your primary licensing authority.
- Renew your licensure annually.

Email registration@clpns.com if you have questions about SJLPN licensure.
